

Acadia

Look out at the glistening sea That early morning light will shine upon the waves that sing on pebbles like the leaves of aspen trees

The gulls that live and play with glee in path of lobster boats awakened by the dawn look out at the glistening sea

the strands of seaweed almost seem to be alive and then with waves are gone
the waves that sing on pebbles like the leaves of aspen trees

the fish that with their home must pay the fee to fight the tide and storms so wrong
look out at the glistening sea

the tide leaves pools that grow with algae whispers its sweet salty song
the waves that sing on pebbles like the leaves of aspen trees

the sand that undertow must force to flee such victims weak opposing foe so strong look out at the glistening sea
the waves that sing on pebbles like the leaves of aspen trees
