

Yesterday was the past that not one person wants to remember and tomorrow is the future that not one person wants to see

Today is a gift that all loved ones near and far want to unwrap because it is a gift known as the present.

From the creation of time your gentle touch, touched everyone whether they knew it or not. The warmth from your heart calms every worry and fear.

With every emotion came a memory which will last into the darkest of days, with every memory comes the emotion that shines brighter than the brightest of days.

The memories that are looked on and remembered we are left with the single thought "To know one, is to know all."

Thanks to twinkle in your eyes and the pulse in your heart, we are given the best gift any one person can receive.

Your presence which has gifted us the memories that will live forever in the past. While your memory gives us the possession of the bow tie that grants us the right to finish wrapping today's present.

As we remember the past, we are gifted with vision of the future.
